No Harm Will Come to Terrazas FEDERAL ADVANCE

Villa Merely Holding Him, als from the head of the Terraxas famto Control Actions of Father, He Says.

ONPAYMENT of the ransom demanded as the price of the life of Luis Terrasas, jr., will not result in the execution of the prisoner, according to a telegram received here from Pancho Villa, at Chihushua.

The telegram states that Terrazas is now free on the streets of Chihushua. Information as to the telegram comes from rebel agents, but these agents and that Villa most certainly would expose Terrazas to the enemy's fire at Torreon unless the prisoner's father, Gen. Luis Terrazas, refrains from political activity.

The younger Luis, it is asserted, always has been held principally as a hostage to control, if possible, his father's efforts on behalf of Gen. Huerth. Even after repeated warnings it is declared that the elder Terraxas has aided the Mexico City government with men and money, until a week ago, when Villa declared that his patience was at an end.

The latter's declared that his patience was at an end.

The latter's declared that his patience was at an end.

The latter's declared to waive the matter of ransom came through representations made by Venustiano Carrays, "supreme thief of the revolution," and by his agents.

A tolegram to Villa from Frederico Gonzalez Garza Sunday pointed out that to execute Terraxas for nonpayment of ransom would be a barbarity which, coming on top of the indignation aroused by the killing of William S. Benton, would seriously injure the "Constitutionalist" cause in the Unlied States and Europe. The telegram suggested that 550,600 pesos, or $250,000, was a small sum compared with the expenses of running the revolution, and that it was a mero nothing compared with the storm of criticism it was certain to arouse.

With the stand of Villa, his agents have no quarrel. They maintain that Gen. Terraxas is far from being the poor man he now claims to be, and that he is a serious menace to the rebel rear through his alleged ability and readiness to equip flibustering expeditions such as those of Jose Terraxas and the Quevedo brothers.

such as those of Jose Terrazas and the Quevedo brothers.

"Villa is a man of his word," said a rebel official, "and, while the younger Terrazas is in no immediate danger, it is certain that Villa will expose him to the firing line if his father lends aid and comfort to the enemy."

Carranza's islegrams to Villa were not peremptory, but were argumentative and pointed out that the sender was in the best position to judge the international aspect of the case. Reference also was made to the intervention of secretary of state Bryan on the grounds of humanity and damage to the prestige of the "Constitutionalist" administration, which such an outrage would engender.

Bryant Delivers Warranta.

When deputy marshal Ed Bryant went to the Mexican consulate at $11 Magoffin avenue at 11 oc.ock, he went to the office of Miguel Diebold, on the second floor of the consulate, and handed the consular inspector the warrants. These were read and Diebold answered: "You have no right to serve these papers here, as this is the Mexican consulate and is foreign soil. However, you are welcome to come to the consulate at any time."

Parley Follows.

A parley followed between Diebold. Margain, the vice consul. A. de in Sierra, the consul, and other clerks and confidential men in the consulate. Frequent calls were made on the telephone by Diebold and others and finally Guillerme Porras, formerly the acting civil governor of Chihuahua under the Huerta regime, appeared with attorneys Harris Walthall and H. R. Gamble. Then began the conferences with commissioner Oliver.

Deputy marshal Bryant then left the consulate at a few minutes before 12, accompanied by the two attorneys. They went to the commissioner's office in the federal building, where another conference was held with the commissioner, who insisted upon his stand that the men appear to answer the charge in person. He said that he would not fix the amount of their bonds until they were before him, but that he would not place them in jail while the bond was being arranged. A bond of $2000 was practically agreed upon in advance.

Diehold came here from east Texas, where he was stationed at Laredo a number of years. De la Sierra came here recently and R. Saldana is not known locally to Mexicana. Diehold is a prominent Mason in Mexico.

The Hights of Consuls.

Since under International law a consul is not a diplomatic officer and possesses only limited privileges of representing a foreign state or sovereign in a semidiplomatic capacity, the consular residence is not regarded as a consular residence is not regarded as a coessarily immune from entry, nor the consular residence is not regarded as a accessarily immune from entry, nor the consul immune from entry, nor the consul immune from entry, nor the consul immune from arrest. Consuls are amenable to the courts of the country to which they are accredited, in civil and criminal cases, but by custom or by treaty, with abundant precedents in international practice, it has been pretty well established that a consul shall not be subjected to any treatment that may render it impossible even temporarily for him to perform his consular functions.

Therefore it is usual to admit a consul to ball even in the most serious criminal cases, or to hold him under surveillance in his own house rather than take him to jail. A consul cannot be drawn on juries or impressed into military or police service. Other immunities are recognized, but except as a matter of couriesy, which governed in the present case of the Mexican officials, they do not extend to inviolability of residence to entry, or of person to arrest.

When a consul offends against the laws of the country to which he is accredited, or mediles in its political affairs, it is usual for that country to demand his recall, or to dismiss him by revoking his executatur. In 1856, the exequatur of official recognition of authority was withdrawn by the United States from three British consuls on the ground that they had belped to recruit men for the British army during the Crimean war. This seems to be almost a parallel case with that of the Mexican officials now under charges.
